THE CATHOLIC CHURCH IN MICHIGAN

The beginnings of the Catholic Church in Michigan date from the 17th century. In the fall of 1641 the French Jesuits Charles Raymbaut and Isaac Jogues visited the Chippewa Indians in the area later called Sault Sainte Marie. Thirty years later, with headquarters at St. Ignatius mission, other Jesuits cared for the area surrounding the Straits of Mackinac. By 1679, Robert Cavalier de La Salle and Louis Hennepin, OFM, explored the St. Joseph River and built a chapel at its mouth on Lake Michigan. Other priests during that time had visited almost all parts of Michigan. Detroit was colonized in 1701. Antoine Cadillac arrived from Montreal, Canada on July 24, bringing with him a Franciscan and a Jesuit Missionaries. A primitive chapel was built within Fort Pontchartrain (present day Detroit) and resident priests served as chaplains. In 1708 construction of St Anne church was begun. The church records, which date from 1704, are the oldest parish records in Michigan and the second oldest continuously active Roman Catholic parish records in the nation. During the following decades Jesuits, arrived in Detroit to work among the native people, while the Franciscans continued to minister to the white settlers.

In 1808 the Michigan Territory was assigned to the new Diocese of Bardstown, Kentucky. By 1818, there were six parishes in Detroit. A new St. Anne's church was built after the old structure had been leveled in the fire of 1805. The new structure was completed by Christmas 1828. By 1826 there were 7,000 white Catholics in the Michigan territory and about 100 African Americans. They were served by eight priests who were located at Mackinac Island, Green Bay, and Frederic Baraga in the northwest sector and the Upper Peninsula. Although the majority of the Catholics were French settlers or native converts, the Irish were trickling into Wayne and Washtenaw counties.

As of the latest count there 1,823,448 Catholics in the seven (arch) dioceses: Detroit, Gaylord, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Lansing, Marquette, and Saginaw in the State of Michigan. This represents 18 percent of the total population for the State.

Mothers Day Roses

The St. Philip Neri and St. Anne Christian Service Committee will be taking orders for 'Memorial Roses' to be placed by the altar the weekend of Mother's Day. There are envelopes and order forms in the back of the church if you would like to use those. Be sure to fill out the order form and place it and payment inside the envelope provided. They may be dropped in the basket in the back of church or the weekly collection basket.

Also we will be doing signups after church if you would like to order that way. We will have someone in the back of the church on April 15 and 22.
